

Rashmi Dubé

Passionate about business growth at a time of global change, Rashmi is an award-winning solicitor, mediator and the managing director of Legatus Law, which provides legal advice to protect companies, their directors & stakeholders.

She has written her first book, 'Making a Splash - A Personal Guide to Networking', on what networking is and isn't, how to network and how to make the most from networking. She is also a renowned speaker and commentator, regularly addressing different audiences on different subjects, and writes a weekly column for The Yorkshire Post.

Rashmi has been involved in the turnaround industry for a number of years, winning the Corporate International Global Award – Business Turnaround Lawyer of the Year in 2014 and 2016. She is on the Board of Directors for the Turnaround Management Association (TMA) in the UK, President of the TMA NextGen North committee in the UK

The MD

LEGATUS LAW

After nine years of running her own businesses and nearly 20 years' experience in the legal industry, Rashmi is recognised as someone who has made a significant impact on her sector, her clients and her peers.

Working with clients across the UK and around the world from bases in London and Leeds, the UK's second biggest financial hub, she helps businesses to grow by supporting their directors with contracts, disputes, partnership agreements, business law advice, shareholders' issues, construction disputes, turnaround and insolvency.

After leaving the corporate world, which included her working as a solicitor at Irwin Mitchell, Rashmi took the leap in 2009 to go self-employed supporting businesses protecting their assets through the recession. Building on the success of this business, Rashmi then expanded her services with the launch of her own law firm, Legatus Law in 2013.

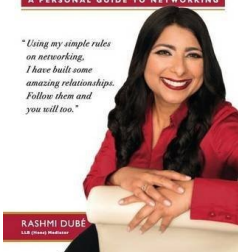

Setting up a new legal practice at a time when there was proof of the sector shrinking, Rashmi fought off negativity from peers and is clear in her vision for the business, which draws upon her own experiences as a growing business with a very specialised service.

Rashmi is well known in the financial, turnaround and construction sectors - as well as working directly with clients, she is also working alongside many partners such as accountants, lenders, brokers, turnaround advisors and insolvency practitioners.

The Author

MAKING A SPLASH

A PERSONAL GUIDE TO NETWORKING

Rashmi launched her debut book in 2016 - 'Making a Splash'. This is her personal guide to networking which includes her simple rules that have made her the success that she is today. She launched the book at events in both Leeds and London.

As a leading entrepreneur, Rashmi believes in the power of building genuine relationships. In her book, she draws on her own experiences of networking in her debut book and talks about the benefits and tools she uses to network successfully.

The book caters for all networking abilities - those dipping their toes into networking for the first time or those looking to improve networking skills to make a bigger splash.

'Making a Splash' is a guide on what networking is and isn't, how to network and how to make the most from networking. Each section of the book helps guide you with explanations and it is packed with ideas, tips and experiences from people who have achieved a lot by networking - both professionally and personally.

At a time of global change, personal relationships, being seen and being aware of cultural sensitives are going to be all important in business and this book is the perfect solution to ensure everyone in a business - from board level to new employees - is making the right impression.
